

Roberta Fox, Esq.

Educational Background:

1980—Carnegie Mellon University, B.A., Fine Arts

1984— Touro College School of Law, J.D.

Experience:

Trial attorney since 1985, focusing on Family Law, Divorce, and Criminal Law, experience in General Personal Injury and Medical Malpractice cases.

Certified in Divorce Mediation since 2009; Head of Residential Closing Department and handled residential closings, including houses, condos, and co-ops.

Since 2009 through the present, member of the Divorce Mediation Panel initially established by the Hon. Robert Ross; mediator in private Divorce and Custody cases.

ADR Philosophy:

“Mediation in Divorce and Family Law lessens the hostility between the parties and helps them to navigate their litigation and decision-making without the stress that is innately experienced during the Court process. The parties learn how to improve the quality of their interactions from negative and destructive, to positive and constructive. Mediation can occur with or without attorneys present. Mediation saves time, money, and reduces the tension between parties. As a result, the children are less impacted by their parents’ separation.”
